Claimpto / 1634

C. Dessau

22. (Amended) A method for analyzing a test nucleic acid sample to determine whether it contains a sequence variance, said method comprising the steps of:

- (a) obtaining a nucleic acid probe that is derived from a hemizygous cell and that is complementary to a sex chromosome or segment thereof;
- (b) forming a duplex between said test nucleic acid sample and said probe; and
- (c) analyzing whether said duplex contains a nucleotide mismatch, thereby determining whether said test nucleic acid sample contains a sequence variance.

46. (New) The method of claim 22, wherein said probe is derived from a cell having only one parental copy of an X chromosome or only one parental copy of a Y chromosome.

47. (New) The method of claim 22, wherein said probe is derived from a cell having only one parental copy of an X chromosome and only one parental copy of a Y chromosome.

49. (New) The method of claim 22, wherein said sex chromosome is from a human.

50. (New) The method of claim 22, wherein said test nucleic acid sample is from a human.

52. (New) The method of claim 22, wherein said cell is a somatic cell hybrid that is formed from the fusion of a cell or chromosome to a recipient cell.

Art Unit: 1634

Reasons for Allowance

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: The present invention is directed to a method for analyzing a test nucleic acid sample to determine whether it contains a sequence variance, the method comprising the steps of:

- a) obtaining a nucleic acid probe that is derived from a hemizygous cell and that is complementary to a sex chromosome or segment thereof;
- b) forming a duplex between the test nucleic acid sample and the probe; and
- c) analyzing whether the duplex contains a nucleotide mismatch, thereby determining whether the nucleic acid sample contains a sequence variance.

Although U.S. Patent No. 6,183,958 teaches a method for analyzing a test nucleic acid sample to determine whether it contains a sequence variance, the method comprising the steps of:

- a) obtaining a nucleic acid probe that is derived from a hemizygous cell and that is complementary to a sex chromosome or segment thereof;
- b) forming a duplex between the test nucleic acid sample and the probe; and
- c) analyzing whether the duplex contains a nucleotide mismatch, thereby determining whether the nucleic acid sample contains a sequence variance, U.S. Patent No. 6,183,958 is not a prior art in view of the terminal disclaimer filed by the applicant on May 12, 2003.

In view of the absence of either teaching or suggestion of such a method for analyzing a test nucleic acid sample to determine whether it contains a sequence variance, the method comprising the steps of:

Art Unit: 1634

a) obtaining a nucleic acid probe that is derived from a hemizygous cell and that is complementary to a sex chromosome or segment thereof;

b) forming a duplex between the test nucleic acid sample and the probe; and

c) analyzing whether the duplex contains a nucleotide mismatch, thereby determining whether the nucleic acid sample contains a sequence variance, the present invention is novel and non-obvious.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
